Designing custom homes is both a privilege and a pleasure. At Cardello Architects, we love what we do, and this becomes obvious to anyone who enters our workspace. But more notably, we want the whole design process to be as fun for our clients as it is for our team.

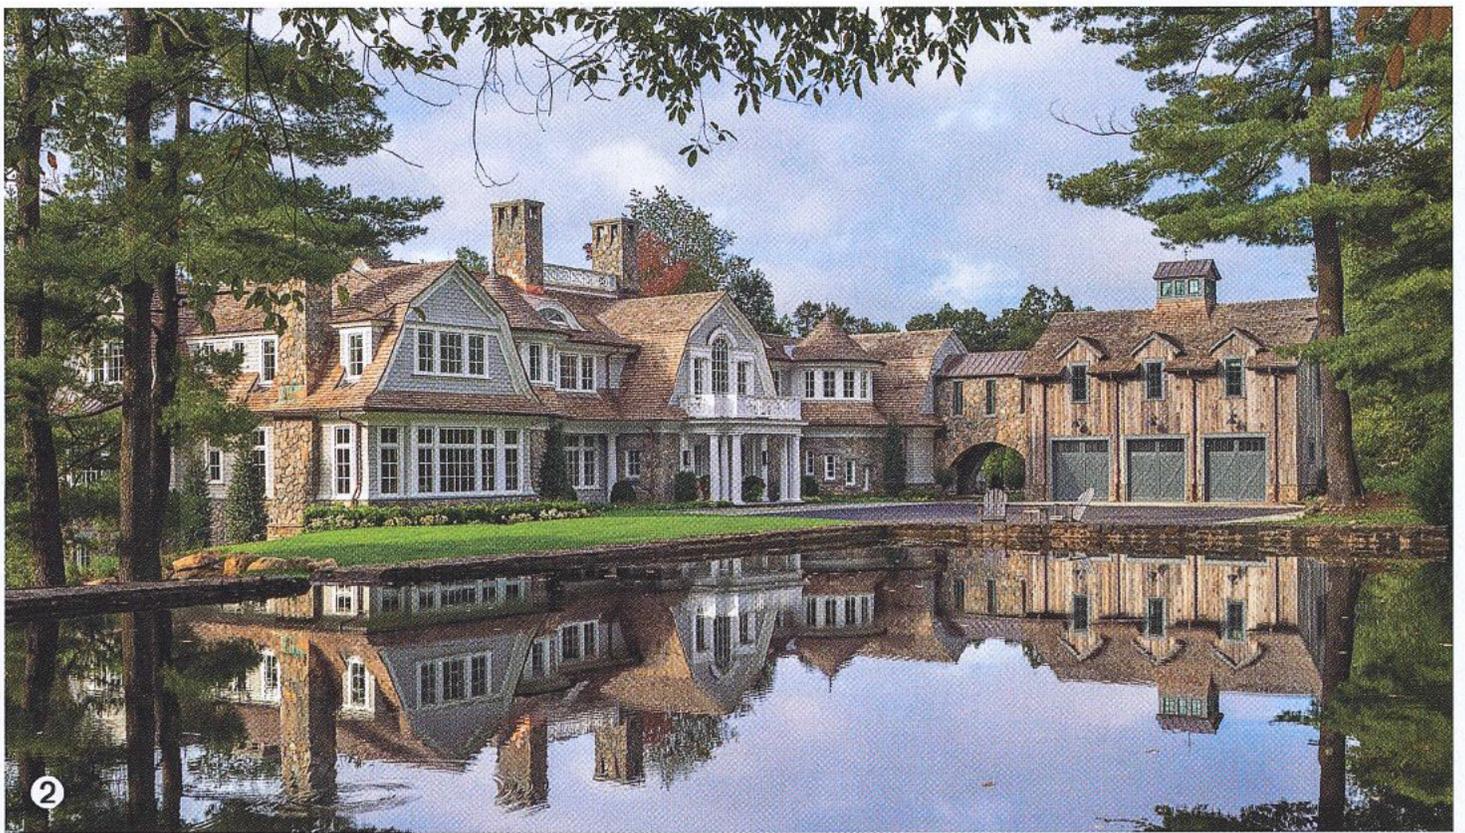

Our staff works in a studio environment where ideas are shared and teamwork is encouraged. Each project is a blend of our clients' visionary lifestyle and our designers' ability to capture the details and nuances that create inspired, custom spaces where people can thrive.

We develop both residential and commercial projects, with a specialty in fine custom homes. Our strong commitment to exceptional design stands above everything else. Listening to a client's vision is the first step, but developing a plan that turns their vision into reality is the most rewarding. A positive and trusting relationship between client and architect is a key component to the success of a project, and ultimately to the success of the business. RAC has enjoyed many repeat customers and word-of-mouth recommendation remains a cornerstone of our firm.

Architecture is a profession that allows your lifetime's work to remain even after you are gone, and the structures you've created are actually a lasting symbol of your artistic desire. These points should be celebrated by all architects, and at RAC we are reminded of them every day.

- ❶ This house was designed for entertaining, featuring a massive great room constructed using Vermont timbers with back covered porches to allow the entertaining space to spill into the outdoors. Dual stair towers add to the symmetrical façade.
- ❷ The Gambrel design of this 15,500-square-foot house gives it a low-slung, approachable scale while incorporating strong design elements such as a barn-like garage and an arched stone porthole to the pool area and pool house.
- ❸ This grand foyer is fitting of the 17,000-square-foot summer house, nestled in the woods of Greenwich. The view past the floating stair offers plenty of open space toward the park-like back yard.
- ❹ The transitional interior of this Rowayton beach house features large retractable glass walls out to the multi-tiered patio with a year-round pool and sauna.
